Experts

Pau Rausell-Koster (University of Valencia, Spain)

Pau Rausell Köster started his academic career in 1989, only a few months after graduating in Economics and Business, joining the University of Valencia as an assistant lecturer. In 1993, during a study stay at the prestigious Institut für Wirtschaftsforschung Empirische of the University of Zürich, he was introduced to the field of cultural economics by well-known economist Bruno Frey. Back in Spain, he approached the few researchers that were specializing in Cultural Economics at the time. One of them was Lluís Bonet, from the University of Barcelona. In 1996, after defending his PhD thesis, he created Econcult, the first Cultural Economics Research Unit in Spain, within the University of Valencia's Department of Applied Economics. Since the end of the 1990s, Rausell has contributed to the development of Cultural Economics in Spain. He made notable contributions to the fields of applied research and methodological development. In 2008, the research unit became part of the newly established Interuniversity Institute for Local Development (IIDL), adding tourism to its fields of study. Since 2009, Rausell has taken part in several European projects (SOSTENUTO, CANEPAL, CREATIVEMED, 3CINCUBATORS) as main researcher and has been commissioned by multinational organizations such as the Organization of Iberoamerican States (OEI) to undertake research projects, coordinating interdisciplinary teams from all over the world. Because of his profile and communicative skills, the researcher has been asked to participate in a great number of conferences and events and teach in postgraduate courses in Spain and abroad.
