IMPACT

WICKED WOMEN consists of a performance celebrating extraordinary women from history that changed the world. A moving, empowering and uplifting physical performance exploring the lives of known and unknown heroines from Elizabeth I to Malala Yousafzai. Tmesis theatre is facilitating a series of vital conversations for women & girls in the arts.

The company also provides free creative development courses for young women aged 19-25 and based in Merseyside. It is designed to help people find pathways into the creative industries, enable them to spend time with other creatives, connect with peers, share ideas, formulate project plans and design their business with expert mentoring and guidance. Tmesis theatre also introduced bursaries for female artists, an all-female physical theatre training company and an international female artist in residence.

NEXT CHALLENGES

There is very much a need to offer opportunities for female creatives, in addition mentoring and being empowered by and with other women is very effective for personal and creative development.

Women are still facing many issues around gender equality and find it hard to find ways/ channels to voice their concerns, find opportunities for progression and development.
